Santa was a hit in the Town of Youngsville's Christmas parade.

HANGING AROUND. Boy Scouts from Troop 5, Troop 500 and Troop 500G (an all female troop) demonstrated repelling techniques during the Youngsville parade.

LOUISBURG'S COUNCIL and Town Administrator Sean Medlin tossed candy to spectators during the annual event.

LARGE AND IN CHARGE. Motorists often have to yield the road to large farm equipment and Bunn's Christmas parade was no different as this John Deere row crop tractor was a Vollmer Farm entry during the town's Dec. 8 parade — which was part of the town's holiday festivities.

Merry Christmas!

HOT. Welding relies on heat and riders in Lou's Mobile Welding float coasted through Bunn's Christmas parade, appropriately, in a hot rod, tossing candy to all those who lined up on Main Street.

Smiles, fun and joyful holiday spirits highlight Alert parade

TOBY AND FRIENDS. An Aussie Doodle therapy dog like Toby has lots of friends, including Lt. Kyle Horton, Leah Goodsell (left) and Celsey Horton, all of whom enjoyed the Alert Christmas parade.

WINNING ENTRY. Matt Perry shows off what he calls his "rat rod," which also was the winning entry of the parade in Alert on Saturday. The vehicle is the result of a multi-year build, he said.

TELLING THE STORY. This entry's theme — "There's snow place like home ... Alert, NC" set the tone for this Christmas parade entry Saturday in Alert.

IN THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT. This young firefighter rode in the Alert Christmas parade -- and waved to bystanders from the cab of the Gold Sand Fire Truck.

READY FOR SANTA. Not only was this trio ready for the upcoming visit from Santa Claus, they were also getting ready for the Alert Christmas parade. From the left are Steve Burnette, Payton Stephens and Georgette Burnette.

YOU NAME IT and this entry had it all. Children tossing candy, a Christmas tree, a young lady all dressed up for the holidays and, unless eyes deceive, that could be the Grinch holding a small dog.

A DELIVERY SYSTEM. When there is a lot of candy to deliver, four-wheelers work quite nicely as this young man demonstrates.

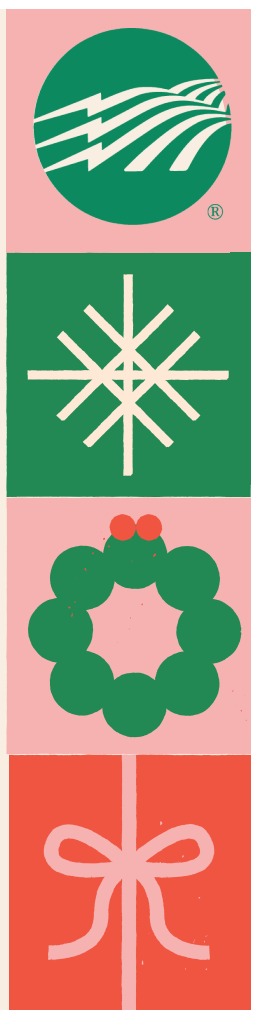

VARIETY ADDS TO A PARADE. A vintage military vehicle sporting state and U.S. flags followed by a Franklin County ambulance were just a sample of the entries in the Alert parade.

WHO IS THAT? Could it be the Grinch ... in Alert? Everyone was welcome in that community's Christmas Parade ... as long as they didn't try to steal Christmas!

PARADE WATCHERS. Among the crowd watching the Christmas parade in Alert last Saturday were (from the left) Kimberly Hayes, Aubree' Solomon, Pauline Anderson and James Anderson.

Powering your holiday season

If there is holly, tinsel and Christmas spirit, it's parade time!

SPIRIT OF THE SEASON. The Louisburg Magnet High School band didn't just march in the Louisburg Christmas Parade, they also provided some of the music that makes the season festive.

CANDY AND BOOKS. Franklin County Library staff brought smiles and candy during the Town of Louisburg Christmas parade Dec. 8. Driving is Ebonis Alston and tossing candy is Morgan O'Bryhim.

Now that's the way to 'march' in a parade!

Santa was checking to see who was naughty and who was nice — and fit the parade into his schedule
